The purpose of the Bachelor of Organizational Leadership (BOLS) program is to provide leadership skills based on Christian principles, increase interpersonal skills and employee relations skills that are required of leaders, enhance communication skills needed by leaders, and expand skills in one’s chosen career path. The curriculum has two options. One is a degree completion option for those with an associate’s degree. The other is for those without a degree. Both options are available online or on campus. The program is intended to supplement one’s technical skills and work experience with leadership and people skills.
The degree completion option for BOLS requires the following:
Completion of approved associate's degree (a maximum of 64 semester hours transferred from an institution that awards only the associate's degree); a minimum of 56 semester hours from a senior college or university; a minimum of 45 semester hours of upper division course; a minimum of 36 semester hours from Anderson University; a minimum of 36 semester hours of general education courses to include communications, statistics, literature, humanities, fine arts, social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, and Christian Studies.

The option for those without an associate's degree or higher requires the following:
General Education (36 semester hours) - courses in communications, literature, humanities, fine arts, social and behavioral sciences, natural sciences, math, and Christian Studies. These are viewed as being the liberal arts component of a degree and are foundational to upper division courses.

Both options require:
OLS Core (33 semester hours) - courses in organizational leadership, management, psychology, sociology, communications and computer information systems, management, organizational leadership, psychology, and sociology.

Major Electives (12 semester hours) - upper level courses that permit a student to take additional work in the specialized areas of computer information systems, management, organizational leadership, psychology, and sociology.

General Electives (Sufficient hours to complete requirement for 120 hours for the degree) - courses that permit a student to take additional work in subjects that interest them and that will be helpful in their careers. It is important to consult with an advisor when selecting electives.

HISTORY
Anderson University traces its origin to one of the first institutions of higher learning for women in the United States, founded in 1848. The original school was forced to close during the Civil War and did not reopen; but in time a new generation carried on what had been begun at that institution. A group of public-spirited citizens, desirous of having an institution of higher learning in Anderson, offered 32 acres of land and $100,000 to the South Carolina Baptist Convention in 1910. In 1912, the College opened its doors and operated as a four-year college for women until 1930, when it became coeducational.

What we know as Anderson University has throughout its history adapted to the educational needs of South Carolinians and those outside the State seeking a great education in a Christian environment.

In 2005, the school officially became Anderson University as it added graduate programs and reorganized into colleges. The university is in the midst of the biggest period of growth in its history, having doubled enrollment in the past 12 years.

Today, more than 3,100 students enjoy a high-quality education in more than 50 fields of study. Anderson University’s scenic campus, located in the historic district of Anderson, South Carolina, benefits from its proximity to the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains and the vibrant city of Greenville, South Carolina. Anderson’s campus has recently grown from its original 68 acres to more than 270 acres, including four new major building projects that have been completed within the past four years.
